We did it… we held our inaugural event in St. John’s, Newfoundland and by all accounts, there is definitely an appetite for more. Don’t worry… we are already working on it!

Overall, the 2018 Re-Ignite Your Ambition workshops facilitated by professional coach Andrea Janzen were terrific. These workshops represented an incredible opportunity to meet other women working in the aerospace sector all looking to reclaim their passion and enthusiasm for the work they do. These exchanges were fruitful in many ways, particularly in the building of networks to continue supporting one another.

We are still working on raising awareness about Women in Aerospace Canada so please share this newsletter with women you know working in the aerospace and aviation industry. It doesn’t matter their level of employment – from entry level to senior executives, from administrative to technical to engineering roles and everything in between. We want to reach all women in this field in Atlantic Canada.

The Atlantic provinces are packed with phenomenal women in aerospace! It’s an incredible network we’re building!

Eva Martinez, Vice-President WIA-Canada

Re-Ignite Your Ambition – NL

We hosted a “Re-Ignite Your Ambition” workshop on Jun 11. Sponsored by ACADA (Atlantic Canada Aerospace and Defence Association) and PAL Aerospace, this event was extremely well attended. As with the workshops in NS and PEI, we focused on identifying what women strive for, what drives our ambition, how to deal with self-doubt and how silence our inner critic.

In partnership with PAL’s Women in Leadership program, this event also included a panel discussion with:

- Dr. Alyson Byrne – Assistant Professor in Organizational Behaviour and Human Resource Management at Faculty of Business Administration at Memorial University
- Carmele Peter – President of the Exchange Income Corporation (EIC)
- Tamara Schock – Chief Financial Officer at EIC

PAL also had an opportunity to trial run the Aviation 101 training package in an effort to give employees without a background in aviation a basic understanding of aviation in the context of the work that PAL does.

Mercury 13 on Netflix

In the 1960s, a secret privately funded program tested 13 female pilots who dreamed of going into space to see if they had the right stuff. Their ambitions were light years ahead and their performance during these tests was exceptional, often times better than the men that were being tested by NASA. Unfortunately, after rigorous testing, they were asked to step aside so that men could participate in spaceflight. The decision even led to a House Committee Hearing on gender discrimination as they fought to break down the gender barriers. This documentary about the forgotten women in the space program is available on Netflix.

Sponsorship and Support and Volunteer

The success of our organization and the quality of the events and programs offered are hugely dependent upon sponsorship from industry, consultants and individuals. Lending your name and financial support to an event will provide exposure to your business. It’s a great opportunity to showcase your business, demonstrate your commitment to diversity initiatives, and support the region’s aerospace and defense community.
